Annual Dinner Meeting Connecticut Entomology Society

Speakers: Charley Eiseman and Noah Charney

Title: Insect Tracking

Charley and Noah are the authors of Tracks and Sign of Insects and other Invertebrates. They are residents of Massachusetts and wish to share with you their excitement in finding insects and their signs in unexpected, unusual as well as the usual places. For this book, they made a cross-country trip to observe and photograph some of North America's insect wonders—but some of the best are right here in Connecticut, if you know how to look. They were diligent in learning the correct names and read extensive literature and consulted with well-known entomologists. The result is their book that received the National Outdoor Book Award.

Whether you are a professional, amateur or just curious, they will open your eyes to look for not only the insect itself, but also their tracks and signs. Their book and presentation are for all ages and everyone interested in natural history. Signed copies will be available for purchase.

The meeting location is Jones Auditorium, Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station, Huntington Avenue, New Haven. It will start at 6:00 pm with a pot luck dinner, followed by a short business meeting. There will be a silent auction of entomological and natural history "whatever". All are welcome to the dinner and presentation. The presentation will start around 8:00 pm. You may call Mike Montgomery at 203-281-4844 in the evening for more information.
